Market Review

Global equity markets extended their rally in June, with U.S. indices hitting fresh all-time highs—driven by AI momentum, improving macro signals, and muted reactions to geopolitical tensions. The S&P 500 and Nasdaq gained 4.96% and over 6.5% respectively, far outpacing European peers. Even a U.S. airstrike on Iranian nuclear sites failed to shake markets, highlighting a growing disconnect between geopolitics and asset prices. European markets lagged, weighed by weaker sentiment and uncertainty surrounding trade policy, while Asian equities saw continued strength in tech-heavy sectors. In Italy, the FTSE Italia All-Share posted a modest decline of -0.5%, outperforming the broader EuroStoxx 600 (-0.9%). Sector performance was led by technology, energy, and telecoms. Mid and small caps continued to show resilience. Large caps were mixed. Financials and industrials remained among the most constructive segments, while autos and luxury lagged. Overall, Italian equities held up better than many European counterparts, supported by positive earnings momentum and favorable sector dynamics.

Fund Review

The latest trades in the portfolio include the purchases of Ariston and Cy4Gate, two companies offering distinct opportunities across different sectors. In particular, Cy4Gate stands out as a high-conviction idea in the cybersecurity and intelligence domain. Founded in 2015 and listed on the STAR segment of the Italian Stock Exchange, Cy4Gate is a vertically integrated cyber company with a unique positioning across cyber intelligence, cybersecurity, and decision intelligence. Its offering spans proprietary software (like QUIPO, RTA, and D-SINT), advanced cyber services (penetration testing, incident response, cyber training), and forensic tools aimed at government agencies and corporates. With a strong footprint in Italy and growing exposure abroad (especially in Spain and Germany), Cy4 is leveraging rising European defense budgets and structural tailwinds in digital security. Despite a weaker-than-expected FY2024 due to delays in high-margin foreign forensic contracts, Q1 2025 results were solid: revenues rose 11% YoY to €16.3M, EBITDA margin jumped to 7.5%, and new orders reached €32M (+115% YoY). The 2025 guidance of €84–87M in sales appears credible, backed by a €73M backlog. At less than 7.5x 2025E EV/EBITDA and with growing momentum in defense and cybersecurity, the stock remains attractively valued. The combination of visibility, proprietary technology, and tailwinds from EU cyber investments supports our positive stance.

Outlook

The global macro outlook remains cautiously optimistic. Our base case continues to project steady, moderate growth with inflation gradually normalizing, despite a more fragmented international landscape. Key risks persist—most notably a potential U.S. recession, primarily driven by unpredictable and potentially self-damaging domestic policies. Additional concerns include temporary inflation shocks, fiscal sustainability issues that could disrupt bond markets, and the possibility of a renewed global growth impulse, particularly if fiscal support from China and Europe materializes more strongly. While the U.S. Federal Reserve remains on hold, anticipating two rate cuts by year-end, markets are watching closely for signs of stagflation. In Europe, the ECB has begun easing, with further cuts possible depending on the impact of tariffs and energy prices.
