Highlights

-Rates trended downward in the US on more dovish monetary policy expectations whilst risk-free mildly rose in Europe on higher defence spending projections Spreads tightened across all segments driving risky asset outperformance Among subordinated bonds, COCOs were best performers gaining more than 1.5 point on average The strategy posted overall positive returns outpacing the reference index taking benefit from its exposure to COCOs

YTD	4.1%	3.5%

Market Review

In June, heightened geopolitical tensions had a relatively limited impact on risky assets, which found support from a subsequent de-escalation in the Middle East and new progress in tariff negotiations with China and Europe. In the U.S. interest rates reversed the upward trend seen in May, driven by progress on inflation and pressure from the Trump administration for a more dovish monetary policy. In contrast, in Europe the risk-free yield curve rose mildly following the decision by NATO countries to increase defense spending to 5% of GDP by 2035. In this context, spreads tightened slightly across all segments, leading to marginally positive results in investment grade, and outperformance in high beta assets, with Senior HY and Tier 2 gaining around half a point and CoCos rising by 1.5 points, bringing the year-to-date gains to approximately 4 points.

Fund Review

The strategy posted positive returns outperforming its reference index by almost 70bps taking benefit from its exposure to COCOs. Best contributors were in fact AT1 instruments such DB perp (+1.6%) and Groupama perp (+1.9%). No instrument had a negative contribution, but less positive contribution came from T2s such as Credit Agricole 2033 (+0.2%) and Santander 2033 (+0.1%). In the reference period the fund experienced more than 6mln of redemptions, but the overall allocation was kept broadly unchanged. Exposure to COCO increased slightly at around 33%, while Tier2 mildly decreased their weight at 50%, while Hybrids remained at 8% and cash increased to towards 8%. The overall duration was unchanged at 4.5 years, 0.5 years above its reference index.

Outlook

Credit valuations are back in expensive territory despite uncertainties on growth prospects and fiscal policies for both US and Eurozone and the strategy will continue to keep a moderately cautious approach looking for better entry point before further increasing its risk exposure.
