Highlights

-ECB Hawkish hold and concerns of higher defense spending in Germany. EUR interest rates increased in July. Credit spreads decreased slightly both for IG and HY.

Cumulative performance	Fund	Index

YTD	0.9%	0.8%

Market Review

July was slightly negative for EUR fixed income assets. Interest rates rose across the curve, while credit spreads tightened modestly. The upward movement in rates was driven by two key developments. First, the ECB delivered a hawkish hold, with President Lagarde suggesting that the 2% deposit rate reached in June could mark the end of the easing cycle. Second, Germany unveiled details of a draft budget featuring more front-loaded fiscal stimulus, reinforcing concerns about higher future issuance and adding upward pressure on yields.

Fund Review

The fund delivered a marginally positive performance over the period. Government bond holdings weighed slightly on returns, while credit allocations contributed modestly. Within credit, both Financials and Non-Financials added value, with the latter providing the strongest contribution to performance. Portfolio allocation remained broadly unchanged during the month. However, the manager increased exposure to Non-Financials corporate bonds, selectively adding positions viewed as offering attractive value. The portfolio’s duration was kept neutral and remained slightly above six years, in line with the benchmark.

Outlook

The fixed income market continues to present an attractive environment, offering opportunities to benefit from yield carry without assuming excessive risk related to interest rate volatility or credit quality. Until there is greater clarity around inflation trends, economic growth trajectories, and fiscal policy, patience and selectivity remain essential, while waiting for tactical opportunities to extend bond maturities and increase duration exposure.
