

Investment objective

The objective of this Sub-fund is to provide its investors with long-term capital appreciation by implementing a UCITS compliant strategy that seeks to approximate the returns that alternative funds using “managed futures style” (the “Managed Futures Alternative Funds”) would typically achieve. The investment policy of such alternative funds using the “managed futures style” comprises strategies that aim at generating returns by taking long and short positions across asset classes (equities indices, government bonds or rates and/or currencies) and by using futures and forward contracts to achieve their investment objectives. There is generally low to no exposure to single companies. These alternative funds generally use quantitative processes to identify long or short opportunities in the various asset classes they analyse. Despite being directional by nature, these strategies have a low correlation to major risk factors over the medium to long term. For the avoidance of doubt, the Sub-Manager will not invest in such alternative funds.

Highlights

-The iMGP DBi Managed Futures ex. Commodities UCITS portfolio returned 1.3% in August and is up 1.3% for the year in USD.

Market Review

The key economic development came from July's U.S. employment report, which pointed to a slowdown in the labor market. The jobs report had huge downward revisions to prior months as well. Jerome Powell of the Federal Reserve noted that the balance of economic risks had shifted, suggesting a possible change in policy direction. In turn, markets are now pricing in a strong chance of a 25-basis-point rate cut at the September meeting. Equities, particularly small caps, rallied on the back of this development and on the news of continued strong equity earnings. The US imposed higher tariffs on a range of its trading partners at the start of August, and later placed a 50% tariff on India in an attempt to discourage its purchasing of Russian oil.

Fund Review

During the month, CTAs began to shift allocations toward risk-on assets, reflecting a more positive view of the economy. Equity markets broadly delivered a strong rally, which contributed positively to overall returns, with US developed and emerging markets being the primary drivers. A yield curve steepener detracted from performance, as yields declined modestly and the curve flattened. Commodity linked currencies rallied on the back of US dollar weakness during the month but with the portfolio's neutral positioning, performance was muted. Major currencies generated offsetting results. Gains from a long exposure to the euro were mostly offset from losses incurred on a short position in the Japanese yen. At month end, the portfolio saw a notable rotation into equities, with increased exposure across all equity asset classes. This late month move coincided with an increased long position in the U.S. dollar, especially against the Yen, after an interim pause.

Outlook

With inflation seemingly contained, the Federal Reserve's focus has shifted toward labor market conditions. However, much of this supportive outlook appears to already be accounted for in equity valuations, which remain elevated relative to long-term averages, particularly in the U.S., where technology stocks have a significant premium. Against this backdrop, investors may benefit from maintaining a well-diversified portfolio, and allocating to alternative assets could serve as a prudent measure to manage risk and enhance resilience.
