Market Review

The TOPIX NTR gained for the eighth consecutive month: +3% lagging the global markets +4% gain. The performance by capitalisation were broadly similar. For the third consecutive month, Value style outperformed Growth. FX moves were limited with the Japanese yen down -0.5pt vs the US dollar and -1pt vs the euro. All sectors, except Utilities -1%, gained. Gains were led by Information Technology, +8%, Energy, +6%, and Real Estate, +5%. IT was driven by semiconductors rallying +20% on a rebound in memory prices and AI hype. Real Estate gained on solid fundamentals. The second worst performing sector was Health Care, unchanged, as policy headwinds persisted. The Bank of Japan left its policy rate unchanged but opened the possibility of a move in October.

Fund Review

The fund beat the benchmark slightly. Sector allocation and stock selection contributed equally to the modest outperformance. The overweight in solid Real Estate and the underweight in lagging Communication Services helped the most while the underweight in strong IT sector detracted the most. Stock selection was noticeably good within IT and Consumer Discretionary but negative within Materials and Financials. The largest portfolio contributors were semiconductor names: Tokyo Electron, +28%, Sumco, +27%, and Murata, +17%, on an improving end market. The largest detractors were unowned Softbank Group, +15%, and Advantest, +25%, on the AI hype. Recruit, the owner of Indeed job search engine, and ZOZO, the dominant EC fashion platformer in Japan, rejoined the portfolio with c.1% each on somewhat attractive valuations. The position in Nitori, a furniture retailer, was increased by +1pt as share price continued to be weak. Conversely, Kyocera, an electronics conglomerate, was exited on profit taking, as valuations became expensive. Additionally, Kansai Paint, a painting company, was reduced by -1pt on reduced upside potential. The fund's largest but neutral exposure is to Industrials, with a 24% weight. The largest active bets remain Real Estate, +5 points at 8%, and Communication Services, -6pts at 2%. Following a strong run the IT exposure was reduced by -2pts to 9%, a -3pts underweight. The cash level is higher than usual and futures were purchased due to a lack of buying opportunities. The ESG profile is broadly unchanged and continues to outperform the benchmark, particularly in terms of carbon emission intensity. TOPIX valuations are at 15.1x 12-month forward P/E, 1.53x P/B and 2.5% dividend yield. The Fund trades at 15.0x, 1.53x and 2.6% respectively.

Outlook

The market has continued its upward momentum supported by an improved earnings outlook into 2026. The market participants are expecting the Bank of Japan to hike rates in October supported by persistent inflation. The market is expecting further hikes over the next two years for a terminal rate of 1.5%. However, the time frame for achieving this rate introduces uncertainty on its feasibility, particularly considering inflation is set to decelerate to below 2% in 2026. Sustaining the wage hike momentum will be key to achieving the rate target. The fund focuses on domestic companies and reasonably priced free cash flow generators even if the team is challenged to find attractive stock picking due to elevated valuation.
